Prof Miles examines the implications of the UK vote in 2016 to leave the European Union from a crisis management's point of view. The lecture outlines the challenges of UK withdrawal from the European Union in the coming years and establishes a number of scenarios from the perspective of fusion if the main terms of references focus on being outside the Single European Market.

Lee Miles is Professor of Crisis and Disaster Management at Bournemouth University Disaster Management Centre, UK and Professor of Political Science at Karlstad University, Sweden. He has directed three major research centres specialising in EU affairs at the Universities of Hull, Liverpool and Loughborough.
